INDIANAPOLIS MARKETS.

An Off Week in Trade, with but Few Fluct-

Trade during the week closing to-day has been unusually small in volume. Beside the political excitement, which upset things, the weather has been unfavorable, heavy rains and bad country roads adding to the week's bad record. The wholesale men coffees, sugars and teas, the belief prevailing with them that the present range in prices on these staple articles cannot long be maintained. There is a tameness still brooding over canned goods, views as regard the quantity canned varying. Canners, however, show a determination to keep prices up by representing that a less quantity of fruits and tomatoes was canned than in the season of 1887.

In the way of beans, peas and corn they admit that the supply is ample. The produce markets have dragged a little the last week, eggs being the only article which carried a strong tone, and on which prices tended higher. Poultry is steady at the recent reduction; receipts have dropped off somewhat. Butter is more plenty, but a good article is readily sold. It was an off week with the dry goods men, their sales dropping considerably below those of the week preceding. Prices, however.

rule firm all along the line; even woolen goods unsettled and prices offish. The wool market is taking better shape. The hide market has drifted under another cloud; the market is active enough but prices are not satisfactory. Lemons are in light supply, and, as well, but few are wanted. Oranges are coming in more freely and of some better quality, and the demand is improving. Other foreign fruits are moving MONEY, BONDS AND STOCKS,

A Dull Market in New York, with Occasional Spurts of Animation.

NEW YORK, Nov. 10 .- Money on call was easy at 12 22 per cent.

Prime mercantile paper in good demand at 426t per cent

Sterling exchange was dull but steady at $4.84 for sixty-day bills and $4.87} for demand. The total sales of stocks to-day were 77,-853 shares, iccluding the following: Delaware. Lackawanna & Western, 3,000; Lake Shore, 1,865, Missouri Pacific, 3,266; Northwestern, 2,400; Northern Pacific, preferred, 6,339; Oregon Transcontinental, 7,335; Reading, 24,850; St. Paul, 4,400; Union Pacific, 1,950; Western Union, 3,425.

The stock market to-day was very dull throughout, only Reading displaying any animation whatever, and the transactions even in that stock failed to score any movement of importance. The opening was very tame and uninteresting, first prices being either unchanged or but slight fractions different from last evening's figures. The temper of the room was conservatively bearish, while London was doing nothing, and commission people but little more. There were reports from the Northwest of a depressing nature, but the news of the day was of slight influence upon the course of prices, and the early pressure upon the list was soon removed. The sagging tendency was most neticeable in Lackawanna, which lost i per cent, but the movement in the rest of the list was entirely insignificant, and a full recovery soon was brought about Cotton Oil was active and became the special feature of the dealings, rising a point, notwithstanding the weakness of the regular list, and most of its gain was held to the close. After the first half hour the list relapsed into the most intense duliness and remained without feature of any sort for the remainder of the session, the market finally closing dull and steady generally at about opening figures. The final changes are for small fractions only, and are about equally divided between gains and losses. The bond list was a little more active, comfeatureless, and, on a business of $628,000, the inal changes are generally for slight fractions. Government bonds were dull, and steady to paratively, than the share list, but was equally

State bonds were qu	niet, but steady to firm.

CHICAGO, Nov. 10. - Wheat was again heavy and tame during most of the session, but recovered some and closed steady. Local traders were again beariably inclined, and some of the larger traders backed their opinions by selling considerable wheat, but operators generally were disposed to act cautiously. There was covering by "shorts" at the decline. The opening was 1010 below yesterday's closing figures, and ruled heavy, declining. with some fluctuations, 11c more; recovered some, and closed about 11c lower than yesterday. There was only a moderate degree of speculative activity manifested in corn. Trading, on the whole, was of a small volume. The feeling developed was inclined to easiness, the weaker tone of wheat having considerable influence on the market, and there was moderate selling by local longs. Opening sales were at to advance over the closing figures of yesterday, after which the market sold of $ @ fc. reacted some and closed twice lower than yes-terday. In oats, May delivery receded from yesterday's closing quotations, and the early market was weak. A subsequent improvement, however, took place, which caused a reaction and a quiet and steady closing, at about yesterday's final figures. Litt e interest was manifested in the market for mess pork, and the feeling was easy. Prices ruled 21 &5c lower and closed quiet at outside figures. Offerings were rather light and the demand limited. Very little business was transacted in the lard market. Offerings were small and the demand light. Prices ruled about .02 to lower and the market closed quiet. Trading was light in the rib market, and the feeling was easier, with prices favoring buvers.

Farm Buildings in Winter. hiladelphia Record. Warmth in winter is only created by the food. No stoves, or methods of warming the buildings, can be conveniently used without risk of damage and increased cost of labor. The bodies of the animals are the stoves and the food the fuel. The better the protection afforded the animals the less fuel required to promote warmth. In addition to the warmth for growth and fat. When more food is given than is required for bodily warmth the surplus heat is stored in the body in the shape of fat. and when the heat is insufficient the bo convert the stored fat into heat and eliminate it off in the shape of the warmth so often noticed when entering a stable. All energy or heat when used for service is dissipated or lost, and this is a constant process. What the farmer should do is to save as much of this heat as possible and convert it into fat.

It is not the open side of the stable that causes loss of heat, but the motion of the air. Every time there is a current of air, no matter how small, it carries off the warmth by putting the air of the stable in motion. The animals usually make the stalls very warm by the heat from their bodies, but a small current of sir, coming down on the upper part of the body, may cause the animal to take cold and become In view of these facts it seems as if there would be an advantage in plastering the barns and stables, not so much with the view of adding to the warmth of a building containing a large berd, but in order to close all cracks and crevices, or by using tarred felt the walls may be made close. Ventilation can then be provided in some convenient manner, but no system of ventilation will be perfect or safe that permits cold draughts of air to pass over the stock during the winter. There is a great saving of food when the buildings are warm and comfortable. The annual loss of stock food through the agency of cracks in the walls of stables in this country is large, and would be a surprise if a true estimate could be given. The annual saving of this loss would more than pay for all the repairs made to buildings, and it is economical, therefore, to have the buildings warm. Another point to be considered is that the health of the animals is promoted, and there is less liability of disease, and consequently a greater production of meat, milk and butter. With warmth, and the requirements of a smaller ration for each animal. more stock can be kept, which not only adds to the profit, but also to the manure heap, upon which the fertility of the farm depends.

How Cabbage Should Be Stored.

Western Bural. We are asked by an amateur gardener if he shall store his caggage in the cellar. Yes, if it is the right kind of a cellar; but there are comparatively few cellars that are the right kind. Cabbage must be kept in a temperature that is not warm enough to cause them to split or rot, and it does not require an exceedingly high temperature to cause that. They must be kept from freezing, too. It will readily be seen that many cellars will not fill the bill Better bury them. Select high, dry land, that furnishes a natural flow for water. Dig a trench from six to eight inches deep, and as wide as will enable you to cover and take out the cabbage with convenience. Four or five rows, packed closely together, is sbont as wide as is convenient. Put foot of earth on them, and when the earth 1 frozen cover with corpstalks or fodder, or anything else that will protect them, as you would do with potatoes.

A standard authority says that milk can be kept sweet much longer by adding to every 100 pounds of milk three eightins of an ounce of dissolved sods. In a sultry atmosphere milk will sour in ten bours, even when it is set under the most perfect conditions seemingly. All sour things must be guarded against, and no pan of sour milk allowed to be near the sweet milk. If a pan of sour milk or cream is on the same shelf it will send off the ferment germs, just as a piece of tainted meat will cause meat to "rot" in a few hours.

When clover does not thrive where it has before borne good crops it indigates that the land is "clover sick." That is, it is in a fertile condition, rich in nitrogen, but lacking in some elements demanded by the clover. The remedy is to change the clover for some other crop. Corn is an excellent crop for the purpose, and pota-toes may follow corn. By applying lime and potash the land can be put in clover again. Rotation of crops is an advantage on all farms.

When Beby was sick, we gave her Castoria. When she was a Child, she cried for Castoria. When she became Miss, she clung to Castoria. When she had Children, she gave them Castoria
